

INDIGENOUS PARTNERSHIPS

PTW Energy Services is committed to forging lasting partnerships within the Indigenous communities where we work and live. We engage in partnerships with Indigenous communities across Canada where viable economic, social development and sustainability opportunities exist. We provide electrical and instrumentation construction and maintenance, control systems and integrated modular solutions through our Indigenous Partnerships. Our talented and dedicated workforce delivers comprehensive services to the oil and gas, mining, utility and port markets across Western Canada.

With extensive experience and respected leadership, our Indigenous Partnerships produce significant benefits for stakeholders:

- Opportunities to connect business and Indigenous leaders to build successful working relationships while developing a greater understanding of the Indigenous world view
- Capacity building within Aboriginal and Métis communities through support of youth and family development, education, economic development, and employment/training initiatives
- A network of supplementary competitive and qualified local and Indigenous services (labour, materials and equipment)

We collaborate with Aboriginal and Métis communities to develop mutual understanding by participating in and sponsoring local community events. As well, our community partners partake in PTW events. Through Impact Society, a not-for-profit youth development organization, we contribute to programs that focus on developing the strengths and character of our youth, as well as parenting programs.

PTW's Indigenous Partnerships have representation in the following organizations:

- National Association of Friendship Centers (NAFC)
- Aboriginal Friendship Center of Calgary (AFCC)
- Circle for Aboriginal Relations (CFAR)
- Canadian Council for Aboriginal Business (CCAB)
- Métis Women's Economic Security Council (MWESC)
- Careers: The Next Generation (Aboriginal Youth Advisory Council)
- Association for Mineral Exploration British Columbia (AME)
- Professional Aboriginal Women in Industry (PAWI)
